The Arts Building becomes a haven for musicians, nurses, and home economics students.

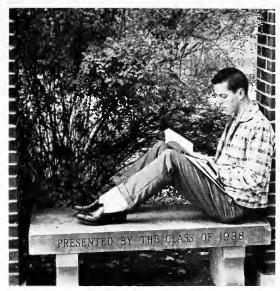

The tower of the Union building serves as a landmark and symbol of Goshen College.

A definition of Goshen College is found by some persons in buildings and landmarks comprising the campus.

The tower of the Union, the rose arbor, the gate, the foundation are distinctive to the hundred acres.

But even more significant are the buildings in which students live and attend classes day after day.

Rittenhouse finds the rose arbor a place for uninterrupted study and thought.

Sophomore, junior, and senior girls make their temporary homes in High Park Dormitory.

Professor Guy F. Hershberger delivers a lecture on problems in family living.

Included in a definition of the college is the class or laboratory period that begins when students meet the professor. Lectures, study, observations give the students insight into art, scientific laws, teaching, events in history, and philosophy.

Edith Mellinger and Steve Lantz conduct a flame test in the laboratory.

Truth found in the classroom is contemplated, studied, talked about, and debated in the less rigid atmosphere of library and small groups. But, even with instruction, learning is not easy, and the student realizes he never will comprehend all of truth.

Informal discussion finds its place on concrete bench in front of the library.

The library provides for students resources for term papers, books for outside reading, and an atmosphere for concentrated study.

Students come to college to live, and they find that more is involved in living than classes, special events, ball games, study and worship. Sharing becomes a part of life as roommates find things in common. Dorm life also comes to mean learning to appreciate the neighbor across the hall, helping the person who lives next door, discussing experiences and meaning in life with friends.

Bicycles stationed outside Yoder Hall await tomorrow's excursion back to campus.

Royal Unzicker studies in the solitude of his room in C. Z. Yoder Hall.

Communication centers in Yoder Hall Lounge.

Conversation passes back and forth over mid-afternoon cokes in snack shop as students take a break from studies.

Meaning in college life is expanded by events—both formal and informal—in the course of a year.

The formal conversation of a Lecture-Music number is supplemented by the informal snack shop chat. Students sometimes go beyond the campus in their search for freedom and relaxation.

Concert by Netherlands Chamber Orchestra is anticipated by couples awaiting 7:00 door opening.

On Sunday afternoon fellows and girls find relaxation in skating on ice bordered by sidewalks, Yoder Hall, and railroad tracks.

In the midst of studies, committee meetings, term papers, persons must take time to find themselves and God. Chapel services, prayer groups, and quiet places for meditation give students opportunity to search for meaning in life, to renew faith, and to revitalize communication. Chapel singing and silent prayer give expression to worship.

Singing the morning hymn in Chapel brings students and faculty into a unified worship experience.

Friends converse as they move from Chapel worship to their individual duties and responsibilities.

The fountain and garden, surrounded by the Seminary Building, invite persons to quiet meditation, prayer, and serious conversation.

by Curriculum

The plan of study sheet for each student at Goshen College lists, from each of the divisions, basic and required courses-fine arts, science, psychology, civilization and Bible.

With these courses, the student in the Liberal Arts college lays a foundation for future study in a specific field.

Individuals find that in their concentrated fields of study, they have the opportunity to register for upper-level courses which will give them clearer understandings and deeper insights into the truth. Competent professors only open to the student the still unexplored areas of truth in his particular field, and lead him to ponder the meaning of this truth in human life. Thus, students prepare themselves to contribute to the world the Christian implications of truth.

Mary Brunk, student assistant to Dr. Bishop, explains laboratory procedures and drawings.

Students, teachers, and assistants in Natural Science spent another year searching for nature's facts in books and exepriments. Even by limiting their study to one area of pure science—mathematics, physics, biology, chemistry—or to one of the applied sciences—home economics, physical education—students could only begin the process of searching for truth.

The science majors—future researchers, medical doctors, and teachers—spent hours in well-equipped laboratories, experimenting and observing natural laws in operation. The Home Economics Department also continued its preparation of home makers, dietitians, interior decorators, teachers, and fashion designers. In addition to courses for science majors, Division III gave students in other fields required one semester survey courses in biological and physical sciences.

The physical education classes again this year gave students opportunity to choose various sports in which to participate and learn rules. Requirements for freshmen and sophomores were fulfilled by eight short terms of sports' studies.

Miss Schantz leads a large class in a study and discussion of important principles for clothing construction and design.

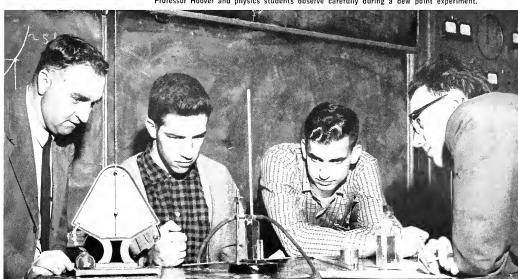

Students learn dissecting techniques from Dr. Witmer in zoology laboratory.

Dr. Bishop points out differences in plants.

Scientists Apply Facts

Dr. S. A. Yoder discusses controversies in literature with students.

Communication of ideas, knowledge of a foreign language, and literary periods were emphasized in speech, language, and literature classes again this year. Classroom discussions, practice speeches, and a study of classics contributed to students' increasing skills in self-expression.

Freshmen and sophomores completed requirements for graduation by enrolling in basic communications and general literature courses. Classes in public speaking, debate, discussion, and literature led upperclassmen into further study of principles of effective communication.

A study of foreign cultures and people accompanied the students' study of various languages. Russian, German, Spanish, and French were practiced daily in the sound-proof language laboratory. College students also studied elementary and intermediate Greek.

Two outstanding things which the English department sponsored this year were lectures by Poet William D. Snodgrass and the publication of a fine arts magazine Foolscap.

Amos Burkholder gives a practice speech.

Students in elementary French class conjugate verbs and imitate Miss Bender's pronunciation.

Scholars Establish Rapport

Members of Dr. Umble's discussion class grapple with current problems in society.

Insights into money and banking are gained by Dean Kreider's students.

Men Study Interactions

Led by Professor Byron Bender, students discuss factors in social geography.

Division II groups—Commerce, Economics, History, Political Science, and Sociology—under the title of Social Sciences, prepared students in each of these fields. Although broadly related in the study of the "human sciences," each department had its separate courses to perfect skills and further knowledge necessary for careers in each field.

Introduction to Civilization, a general education requirement, was organized again this year as a mass lecture and smaller discussion groups. Dr. John Oyer delivered the class lectures in Assembly Hall; discussions in current events and problems of history were led by Oyer and teaching fellows James Hertzler, Gordon Zook, and Alan Kreider.

The sociology department again this year started future social workers on their studies. Students in other fields also registered for upper-level courses in this group. Plans of study in Commerce varied from one-year secretarial certificates to B.A. degrees in the field.

Miss Winey helps commerce students understand and solve problems in accounting.

Freshmen meet in remodeled Assembly Hall to listen to Dr. John Oyer's civilization lecture and to take careful notes for future study.

Music majors discuss characteristics of historical music periods.

Persons Gain Appreciation

Activities and changes marked 1961-1962 in the field of fine arts. Student contributions to campus atmosphere included senior music recitals, displays of creative photography, painting and craft exhibitions.

A general introductory course—Fine Arts—was taken by many underclassmen to complete requirements for graduation. Students specializing in music furthered their studies through music theory and applied music classes. Art students practiced painting, print-making, and weaving in upper-level courses applying to a major in art.

Several additions were made to the Music Department this year. A second pipe organ was imported from Germany and installed in the Arts Building. Organ lessons were added to the course offering sheet. Also, for interested students, a class in contemporary fine arts was given as a supplement to Introduction to Fine Arts. The Richard Nase Memorial Fund was started to contribute to the music program. Mr. Nase, who helped to install the pipe organs, died of leukemia on Christmas Eve.

The Art Department sponsored two exhibits this year—paintings by Carlos Morgan and prints by Ray French. Invited by the Music Department, the Chamber Singers of Indiana University presented a program of sixteenth century madrigals in November.

Larry Landes concentrates on notes, foot pedals, and keyboards at organ practice.

Shading of objects is studied by John Minninger in still-life chalk drawing for general drawing and painting class.

Students in weaving class learn methods of manipulating various kinds of thread into cloth.

Senior nurses in Public Health training visit community homes several times each week.

The Goshen College School of Nursing received word in December of their accreditation by the Department of Baccalaureate and Higher Degree Programs of the National League for Nursing. This recognized the nursing curriculum as being on par with other leading collegiate nursing schools across the country. Accreditation would be especially significant to students going on to graduate school and to leading jobs in the field.

Students enrolling in nursing again followed a fairly rigid course of stury. Sophomores were given a general background in the field through a six-hour course in nursing arts and one day per week at Elkhart General Hospital. Pediatrics, obstetrics, and medical-surgical nursing were studied by juniors through classroom lectures and through experiences in the hospital. Senior nurses took a core of professional courses, along with their Public Health program.

The class graduating from the school this year was the first to have completed the total nursing program in residence at the college. Their only affiliation with hospitals other than Elkhart was in psychiatric nursing at Westville, Ind., during the summer of 1961.

Students Find Understanding

Dean Beechy leads teachers-in-training to study psychology involved in learning.

Teacher Education at Goshen was faced with the probability of opening a graduate school in teaching or affiliating with a neighboring university.

After studying teacher certification in Indiana, 36 committees of educators proposed new requirements to the Indiana State Board of Education. To receive permanent certification, future teachers beginning undergraduate or graduate work after September, 1963, would need 30 hours of general education courses, stronger majors and minors than most liberal arts students, and at least eight hours of graduate level work in each of their teaching fields. Such a program is planned to cover five years of study, leading to a Master of Arts degree.

Again this year, psychology majors and other interested students studied people in relation to others and to their environment. Courses offered covered aspects of psychology from infancy to old age. Students were given opportunity to broaden their understanding at the Conference on Aging, held on the campus last fall.

Kindergarteners in laboratory class provide material for education students' observations.

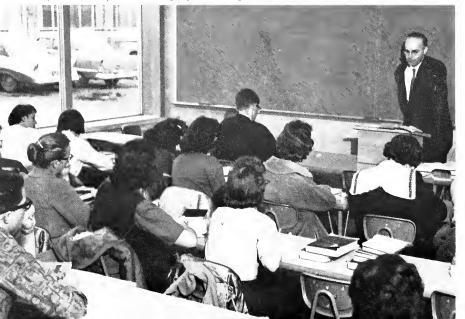

Psychology in social relations is discussed in Dr. E. E. Miller's upper-level course.

Professor Jeschke guides upperclassmen in detailed study of Romans and Corinthians.

Individuals Explore Faith

Sophomores, led by Professor Nafziger, ponder the significance of the Old Testament.

Division IV-Bible and Philosophy-offered courses this year to students to fullfill the required four years of Bible and to gain deeper understandings of the Bible and of the Church. Surveys of the Old and New Testaments, introductions to philosophy and ethics, a history of Protestant Christianity, and studies of Biblical books were included in students' four-year plans of study.

The Seminary provided a center of learning for fulltime students as well as for congregation pastors. The seminary curriculum was revised and a student aid fund was created.

Ties between the Seminary and local congregations were strengthened through practical work assignments of seminarians and through teams of seminary students and faculty who gave programs in area churches. Also, the Ministers' School, held for three weeks in February, gave congregation pastors an opportunity for study.

The Seminary library received a grant of $9000 for books and magazines. To benefit from this grant, the seminary will have to raise $18,000 above the regular budget in the next three years.

Intermediate Greek class concentrate on Dr. Beyler's explanation of grammar and construction.

Seminary and college students find histories of Israel, Bible commentaries, and current religious publications in the Seminary library.

by Instruction

Members of the faculty bring to the classroom lectures a rich background of graduate study, trips to Europe, experiences in work, and terms of service for the Church. Their dedication to the profession of teaching is evidenced in competency and interest they have in their fields of study and in their understanding of student life and problems. Conversations after Chapel and in faculty committee meetings bring them together in common concern for Goshen College. Also, in conferences, lectures, and classroom discussions, professors reveal their interest in seeing students succeed not only in academic pursuits, but also in spiritual growth, in social relations, and in professions. "Culture for Service" becomes a goal for them and for their students.

PAUL MININGER, B.D., M.R.E., PH.D. President

The president and deans of Goshen College are given the responsibility of carrying out the policies of the college in relating to the Mennonite Church, the community, and other colleges. In the interest of formulating these policies, President Minninger served as chairman of Higher Education Council and of the Council of Mennonite Colleges. He also participated on a commission studying church-state-college relations and on the Ministerial Committee of the Mennonite General Conference.

The deans' responsibilities were closely connected to students' acedemic plans. Dean Kreider was active also in duties outside the campus community. He helped in a study of retirement plans for persons employed by the Mennonite Church, edited the North Central Association Bulletin on Liberal Arts Education, served on the Committee of Social and Economic Relations and Mennonite Ard Board.

Dean Harold S. Bender, in addition to heading the seminary, served as president of the Mennonite World Conference. He was responsible for the ground work for the summer conference. Other activities included the preparation of a book These Are My People dealing with the nature of the church, and participation in an East-West theological colloquy in Carlsbad, Czechoslovakia. Having served as dean of the seminary for eighteen years, he resigned in January. He will continue to act as dean for one more year.

HAROLD S. BENDER, M.A., TH.D. Dean of the Biblical Seminary Professor of Church History

Board of Overseers: Charles Hoeflich, Alta Mae Erb, Howard C. Yoder, Orrin Smucker, Dwight Yoder, Norman High, Harold Zehr, John Mosemann.

Overseers View Ten-Year Plan

The Board of Overseers serves as an organ of the Mennonite Board of Education to coordinate the policy of Goshen College with that of the Mennonite Church. In the quarterly business meetings, they studied a ten-year plan for the college, appointed faculty, and set fees and salaries.

Guidance personnel were closely associated with students through personal conferences. Returning to campus from a Fulbright lectureship in India was Atlee Beechy. Russel Liechty and Amy Hunsberger, who took leaves to continue study, were replaced by S. L. Yoder and Dorothy Byler, respectively. Atlee Beechy served as president and Viola Good as secretary-treasurer of the Indiana College Personnel Association.

JOHN H. MOSEMANN, B.A., TH.M. Pastor of College Mennonite Church

Project Development

Administrators in development, public relations, business, and student services were instrumental in doing behind-the-scenes work. Several of them were occupied with study and special projects this year.

Directors in development and public relations worked together to complete a college film started last year. This thirty-minute production, "The Other Disciples," portrayed for the church and community the past and present development of Goshen College. A second major step taken by these offices was the appointment of Johnson, Johnson, and Ray from Ann Arbor, Michigan, to serve as landscape, architect, and sight planners for the expansion of the campus.

Harold Bauman received his masters degree in theology from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in January. Bill Zeurcher resigned from his position to become business manager at Brooklane Farms. His duties were assumed by Mel Birky, a 1962 graduate from the college, and by Mahlon Stoltzfus.

Lester Zimmerman returned to the campus to teach several mathematics classes. He received his masters degree from the University of Illinois during his year's absence. A new instructor, Martin Hoover, joined the staff to teach physics. He completed study for his doctoral degree at the University of Southern California last June.

Research in science this year continued as Frank Bishop and Arthur Smucker jointly studied the actions of fungi as parasites. Glen Miller continued his cancer research. Henry Weaver divided his study time among complex ions, proteins, and mercury. His completed work on complex ions has been accepted for publication by the Journal of the American Chemical Society.

Science professors took active parts in professional organizations. Henry Weaver was vice president of the American Science Affiliation and chairman of the St. Joseph Valley section of the American Chemical Society. Arthur Smucker served as secretary to the latter organization, as well as to the Indiana Academy of Science.

In Home Economics, Olive Wyse, a member of the American Home Economics Association, attended the National Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards, and was chosen as representative to the National Commission of Home Economics Accreditation. Edna Shantz advised the Indiana Home Economics Club.

Social Science

Studying for degrees and writing dissertations occupied many of the Social Science faculty this year. Professors continued to seek truth and understanding in their various fields.

Lester Glick, after a year's absence, returned with his doctoral degree in social work from Washington University in St. Louis. He later prepared his dissertation, Concepticalization and Prediction of Social Functioning, for study by the Christian Education Committee. Also completing work for a degree was Carolyn Moser. She received her masters degree in business administration from Indiana University. Second semester, Byron Bender taught only part time as he completed his dissertation in linguistics at Indiana University.

Calvin Redekop, visiting professor from Hesston College, taught sociology and psychology courses second semester. Mr. Redekop, with J. A. Hostetler, worked on a comparative study of Old Colony, Amish, and Hutterite groups this year. GUY HERSHBERGER, PH. D. Professor of History and Sociology

CAROLINE MOSER, B. A. Instructor in Commerce

JOHN S. DYER, PH. D. Associate Professor of History

CALVIN REDEKOP, PH. D. Visiting Professor of Psychology and Sociology

LOIS WINEY, M. A. Assistant Professor of Commerce

SAMUEL A. YODER, PH. D. Professor of English

In Language, Literature, and Fine Arts, professors gave concerts, advised student publications, and served in community projects.

Several professors spent the year in class and campus work. S. A. Yoder advised the production of the fine arts magazine, Foolscap. Elizabeth Bender selected numbers for a German song book to be published for use in German classes. A full-time instructor in English—Elizabeth Showalter—came to the campus from the Mennonite Publishing House. She formerly served as editor of Words of Cheer, and this year she taught classes in freshman English and writing.

Professors were also active in serving the public. Roy Umble reviewed the proposed English curriculum for the Goshen city schools. Mary Oyer, Lon Sherer and his wife Kathryn formed a trio of cello, violin and piano. This group gave recitals here and at several colleges in Kansas—Hesston, Bethel, and Tabor.

ELIZABETH BENDER, M. A. Assistant Professor of German

MARY ELEANOR BENDER, PH. D. Associate Professor of English

JOHN J. FISHER, JR., M. A. Associate Professor of English

KARL MASSANARI, ED. D. Professor of Education

ESTHER EBY, M. ED. Assistant Professor of Education

Teacher Education

Individuals serving the community, professors coming and going, committees reviewing programs in education characterized the teacher education and psychology staffs this year.

Ernest Miller retired from his duties in the college at the end of first semester. He had been president of the college from 1940-54, and until this year taught psychology. He will serve as principal of Woodstock School in India for a time.

Several changes were made in the teacher education program and staff this year. Mary Royer, Mary K. Nafziger, and Perry Miller spent the summer of 1961 studying the four-year program for elementary education; they laid plans for field experiences for students preparing to teach. Added to the staff was Samuel Yoder, who formerly served as teacher and counselor in Mishawaka public schools. Mary K. Nafziger completed her doctorate at Northwestern University.

Karl Massanari worked in the community and in professional organizations this year. He wrote the final report for the committee studying school reorganization in Elkhart County. He also served as president of the Goshen Exchange Club and as member of the National Committee on Visitation and Appraisal for the National Council for Accreditation for Teacher Education.

Nursing

BERNICE RUPP, R. N., M. A. Assistant Professor of Nursing

JOY YODER, R. N. B. S. in Nursing Instructor in Nursing

VERNA ZIMMERMAN, R. N., M. A. Assistant Professor of Nursing

Nursing professors found time outside of their work at the college to become involved in various organizations.

Several of the nursing staff were active in professional associations. Orpah Mosemann, a member of the College Board of Review for Accreditation, attended the council of Baccalaureate and Higher Degree Program at Kansas City. She also took part in the State Nursing Convention at Purdue. Eva Byers served as president of the 12th district of Indiana State Nurses Association, Janice Luckenbill sponsored the local and regional Student Nurses Association.

Community and Church were also served by nursing instructors. Duties as president of the local chapter of the Mennonite Nursing Association and secretary of the Adult and Child Guidance Clinic in Elkhart were assumed by Verna Zimmerman. Bernice Rupp and Orpah Mosemann also served as consultants for the Health Services Division Commission for the Planning Council of the Elkhart County United Fund. Anna Mae Charles was a member of the Christian Nurture Study Committee for the Mennonite Church and of the local and state United Cancer Fund.

Bible, Philosophy, and Seminary

Books were written by seminary and Bible professors in spite of their heavy loads of classes and activities. Several professors returned to teach after a term of absence; a new instructor was obtained.

Two books written by J. C. Wenger were published this fall-Even Unto Death, dealing with sixteenth century Anabaptists, and Mennonites of Indiana and Michigan. Professors returning to the campus this year were Howard Charles, who was in Japan for one year, and C. Norman Kraus, who received his doctoral degree from Duke University. A new instructor, Marlin Jeschke, a candidate for a doctoral degree at Northwestern University, taught philosophy and upper level Bible courses in the college, as well as in the seminary. Bible courses in the seminary were also taught by Clayton Beyler, visiting professor from Hesston College, first semester.

GEORGE ALEXENKO
Part-time Instructor in Russian

The college teaching staff was supplemented with qualified persons from the community who taught on a partime basis. These instructors include persons who hold jobs in area public institutions, persons who are students, and persons from various professions.

The division of teacher education utilized the experience and understanding of a number of individuals. Anne McAllister taught reading problems; Audrey Russell, guidance; and David Yoder, speech correction.

Business instructors included James Snyder, economics and Robert Hepler, business law.

ANNE McALLISTER, M. S. Part-time Instructor in Education

S. C. YODER, S.T.D., D.D. President Emeritus and Professor Emeritus of Bible, Director of Bible Correspondence

JOHN UMBLE, M.A. Professor Emeritus of English and Speech

The music department brought persons to the campus to give private instrumental lessons and to teach various classes. Instructors in various fields included Vance George-teaching of high school music, Ejnar Krantzpiano, Eleanor Nase-piano and introduction to music, Myron Casner-organ, and Romaine Sala-teaching of elementary school music. Other classes in Division I taught by part-time instructors were Russian by George Alexenko and basic communications by Miriam Lind and Arnold Roth.

by Participation

In their spare time, students find fulfillment and reward in a round of activities—leading cheers at a basketball game, discussing poetry and symphonies, practicing serves in tennis, typing for the RECORD, assisting in the Lighthouse work, playing oboe in the orchestra, studying the debate question, and putting final touches on decorations for Spring Fest. For the individual student, involvement in organizations provides experiences in further learning, social encounters with others, and time-consuming, difficult, but refreshing work. At graduation, the senior realizes that rewards of participation are more than a long list after his name in the yearbook. Lessons in creative approaches to work, in living with others are invaluable aspects of his vocational preparation.

Athletes Form Honorary Councils

Women's Athletic Association is an organization of girls active in intramural sports. Membership is determined by points acquired through length of participation and success in various sports. The girls took part in Sports Days with Calvin and Huntington Colleges; they were awarded a loving cup for victory in basketball and volleyball. A badminton tournament for high school girls was also sponsored by the group.

G Council is a similar honorary organization composed of letter-winners in men's intramural team and individual sports. This group, along with WAA, sponsored the all-school Halloween party in the gym this year. They joined the girls in planning a spring Athletic Banquet for members of the two organizations.

Cheerleaders. Joan Johns, Lois Shetler, Colleen Rhodes, Rhoda Nyce, Lynda Short, Faye Newcomer.

Athletics fulfill an important role in the extracurricular program. Students find relaxation and challenge in the extra- and intramural programs. From the individual abilities of golf and tennis to the team cooperation of basketball and soccer, individuals learn good sportsmanship through participation.

Spectator interest in these activities is evidenced by the filled gymnasium game nights and by the enthusiasts who brave the cool breezes of autumn to follow the soccer team.

Posting a fine 9-5 record, Goshen cagers completed their second winning season in a row. The Leafs took four of the first five contests with victories over Bethel, Concordia, Defiance, and Grace. 103 points against Grace was the high total for the year. Goshen's initial defeat came at the hands of Taylor, 96-80. After losing four of the next seven games, including two close contests with Huntington, the Leafs wound up the campaign with a 74-72 win over Earlham and a 82-67 victory against EMC.

Captain Fred Litwiller and Linus Miller led the offensive attack with 15.8 and 15.4 point averages. The team average of 88.3 points per game was one of the highest in Indiana.

The J-V's fell just below the .500 mark as they finished the season with a 5-6 record.

Schrock drops in two more points.

Tennis Marks Winning Season

The three-year winning skein of the tennis team was broken at twenty-three victories as the netters dropped their first fall match against Manchester, 4-3. Following this initial defeat, the team won six of seven remaining matches, including a 4-3 victory over Manchester, to round out fall competition with a respectable 6-2 record. Included in the six game Spring schedule were matches with Western Michigan, Manchester, Tri State, and Earlham.

Unsuccessful in their first three contests, the soccer team gained a 2-2 tie with Calvin in the final game of the season. The 0-3 record proves deceiving in that Indiana Tech and Notre Dame were victors only by the slim margin, 2-1.

Spring Activities Are Popular

The baseball team with 15 returning lettermen faced a heavy schedule of 22 games during the spring. Included was a five game road trip during Easter vacation. Opponents included Anderson, Manchester, Indiana Central, and Oakland.

A schedule of six matches was arranged for the two-year-old golf team under the direction of Dr. Glen Miller. The linksmen dropped their first match, 10-5, to Manchester at the new Maplecrest Golf Course. Competition with Huntington, 3t. Joseph, and Concordia plus participation in the Indiana State Golf Meet followed.

Individuals Display Skills

During the year several tournaments are scheduled which provide opportunity for individuals to display their various skills. Winners in this year's activity included Jason Byler in ping pong and John Beachy in handball. Competition in men's and women's shuffleboard, horseshoes, and badminton also took place during the spring.

Interest in gymnastics gained impetus through the organization of a team under the direction of Byron Shenk. The regular practices were climaxed with a public exhibition before 300 thrilled spectators.

Tumbling team performs at public exhibition.

A return is made in women's volleyball contest.

Intramurals provide an opportunity for men and women to exercise their abilities beyond the physical education classroom and the extramural program. In the women's division, the Juniors were victorious in softball and basketball with season records of 4-0 and 5-1 respectively. Coffman Hall took honors in basketball B division and the Sophomores won the volleyball title.

College women also entered into competition with neighboring schools in basketball and volleyball. The Leaflettes dropped Calvin and Huntington in basketball by scores of 54-32 and 100-24. Calvin reversed the picture in volleyball as they defeated the Goshen squad 3-2

Action in the men's intramural league this year was dominated by the Juniors and Sophomores. The Juniors took the softball championship at the onset of the season and completed the program by wrapping up the volleyball title. A last second touchdown against the Sophomores gave the Juniors the grid championship with a perfect 5-0 mark. The Soph squad settled for second with four wins against one defeat.

Soccer found the Sophomores and Seniors deadlocked for first place with identical 2-1 records. Sophomore's Untouchables grabbed the title in basketball division A. This was followed with the championship in the post season double elimination tourney. Divisions B and C were won by the Freshman Celtics and Junior III.

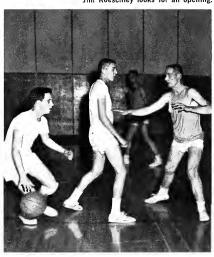

Opponents prepare for spike off the hand of Ron Hurst in Frosh action.

Literary and Alumni competition again added spice to the regular college sports program this year.

Literary action saw the Auroras make a clean sweep over the Adelphians for the second straight year. With an initial 6-3 victory in softball, the Auroras went on to win in football and soccer, 14-8 and 1-0 respectively. Keen rivalry was evident in the basketball contests as the Adelphians dropped two decisions 85-80 and 84-80. The Vesperians accounted for the lone A-V triumph by downing the Avons 1-0 in field hockey. The Avons, however, gained 26-5 and 46-30 victories in softball and basketball.

The Leaflettes dropped the Alumni, 44-37, in their annual contest.

YPCA Personifies Witness

Y Cabinet: Carolyn Detwiler, Gene Stoltzfus, Mike Massanari, Vicky Bryan, Warren Lambright, Jeanette Rhodes, Joanne Yoder, Seminary Representative A. J. Klassen, Velorous Gingrich, George Wismer, Advisor Harold Bauman, Stan Friesen, Dawn Miller, Mary Beth Kaufmann, Gordon Zook, Rhoda Nafziger, Doug Snyder.

Hesston, Goshen, and EMC students search for a working definition of church.

The Young People's Christian Association, an organization of students seeking "to know Christ and to make Him known," serves as the body to provide for students church experiences in service. The majority of the student body belong to this organization and take part in its program.

The Cabinet of the Y, composed of George Wismer—President, Velorous Gingrich—Vice President, Joan Yoder —Secretary, Orrie Clemens—Treasurer, Commissioners, a seminary representative, and an advisor, wrestled with difficult problems of policy and purpose of the Y this year. They met each week to discuss campus problems and areas of concern to Christians on the campus.

One of the highlights of the year was the Inter-Y Conference, at which representatives from Hesston and Eastern Mennonite Colleges met with Goshen's Y leaders to discuss for two days the college student's relation to a church group. The cabinet also met several times with the faculty Religious Life Committee, and as a group at Brunk's Cabin for weekends of relaxation and discussion.

Highlights for the Service Commission, led by Vicky Bryan and Mike Massanari, were Work Drive and Lighthouse service. Work Drive totaled more than any other year in its history; money was divided between Hope Waddell School in Nigeria and a library expansion fund. Students planned crafts for Lighthouse children four evenings each week. Other workers served at Bashor's Children's Home, at Boys' Club in Goshen, in week-end Voluntary Service units, and in new club work begun this year.

The Evangelism Commission, led by Doug Snyder and Rhoda Nafziger, moved out into community work again this year. Groups sang at nursing homes, private homes, on Gospel Team programs, on the student-produced radio program, and at Rescue Missions. Other students taught Sunday School, preached, and gave testimonies as their witness to Christ.

A discussion group met several Sunday afternoons to explore the meaning of personal evangelism. New also in this commission was assisting in work among Spanish people in Milford.

College men harvest potatoes, sod Maplecrest Golf Course to earn contributions for Work Drive.

in Identifying with Needs

Betty Studer leads children in worship at Baptist Church in Elkhart.

Committee men pack books for shipment to Africa.

Missions Commission project this year was sending books to Africa for sale by missionaries there. Dawn Miller and Stan Friesen led their commission into an exploration of types of mission fields, of new outlooks in mission work, and of cultures and religions faced on the field. Chapel services, bulletin boards, and regular Missions Fellowship meetings, conveyed these emphases to the student body. Individuals also took part in the work through personal correspondence with missionaries.

Carolyn Detwiler and Gene Stoltzfus led the Faith Commission this year in encouraging the spiritual growth of college students. Some of the activities they planned for this purpose were Sunday School classes, Chapel programs on Thursday mornings, dorm prayer meetings, and Search—an inspirational Sunday morning program. Youth Forums were also held at several times throughout the year; they dealt with the Christian's view of Peace Corps, science, and art.

in Clarifying Responsibilities

Nelson Kilmer refutes Prof. Kraus's position on sit-ins in Sunday School class.

Items for the bi-weekly publication are selected by Y Communicator staff members.

in Communicating Concerns

Headed by Gordon Zook and Mary Beth Kaufmann, the Publicity Commission served as the center of communication from the Y to the student body, the church, and the faculty. Means of conveying information and concern on campus included the Y Communicator, bulletin boards, posters, and the student handbook. Outreach to churches from which students come included letters to pastors and MYF teams who toured Illinois, Ohio, and Pennsylvania during Easter vacation.

To further a greater depth in Christian sharing of ideas, the Fellowship Commission, headed by Jeanette Rhodes and Warren Lambright, arranged fireside fellowships at faculty homes this year. This group of students were also instrumental in planning all-school socials, hymn sings, and music for the dining hall. The commission stressed small group parties as basic to vital fellowship. They utilized popcorn parties in Westlawn Lounge and weekends at Brunk's Cabin for this purpose.

Fifty pages due at the end of the month and no copy written yet on the twentieth, pictures to be taken and no people present to be photographed were reasons for the Maple Leaf editors' and staff members' headaches in their rush to get things done in time. The Maple Leaf staff again this year put in long hours and much hard thinking to produce a record of the school year. Selection of materials to use made the work difficult, for a one-hundred-eighty-page book could not hold all the editors wished to picture.

The editors, along with Record editors and their successors journeyed to Taylor University to attend a journalism convention in March. The other activities of their work were confined to the small and cluttered Administration Building office where plaster was falling and temperature was unpredictable.

Record Staff Edits News

The Record brought to its readers again this year complete coverage of campus news, critical reviews of speeches, announcements of important events, and provocative editorials. The editors also added regular columns on world news, increased reporting of YPCA news and release of Student-Faculty Committee recommendations. These articles were printed in the same format as before, with minor changes in headline styles and layouts.

The staff struggled every second Tuesday night with production problems—headlines, picture placements, and articles that were too long or too short. Wednesday and Thursday evenings of publication week, proof pages were carefully combed for errors by editors armed with red pencils. The circulation staff delivered the finished product to students on Friday.

The Record office was rearranged this year, additional furniture was moved in, and white bulletin boards—to hold important staff notices—were put up around the room. Pictures cut from the newspaper were also displayed on the office door.

Joan Johns—Feature Editor, Faye Newcomer—News Editor and Allen Martin—Sports Editor share the feature article in the RECORD.

Church Music Is Interpreted

Motets Study Baroque Works

Motet Singers: Front: Dr. Mary Oyer, Macy Friedt, Phyllis Bontrager, Martha Bender, Carolyn Stoltzfus, Rhoda Nyce, Phyllis Unruh, Beryl Martin, Carolyn Smucker, Kay Swartzendruber, Betty Falb, Adeline Amstutz, Judy Heiser. Back: Chris Yoder, Kenneth Nafziger, David Kanagy, Alan Krieder, Bill Baerg, J. Evan Krieder, Gordon Lapp, Willis Rudy, Amos Burkholder, Orrie Clemens, Marvin Miller, Sherwyn Bachman, Larry Landes.

The Nurses Octet is a group composed of sophomore, junior, and senior nurses who, because of their 6:00 a.m. departure for Elkhart General Hospital, can not be a part of choruses with morning practices. Directed by Adeline Amstutz, these girls sang for fellow nurses and students at the Mennonite and District Student Nurses' Association meetings in April and May, respectively. They presented several numbers at Christian Life Conference on campus, and gave a program at Leo, Indiana. They concentrated on chorales from church music history, singing works of composers such as Palestrina and Freylinghauser.

Seminary Chorus members are students in the seminary or pre-seminary curricula. These men joined under the leadership of Marvin Miller to study representative works from periods of church history. Included in their repertoire were twelfth century chants and works by modern composers. The group took two week-end trips to Ohio, gave campus and local programs, and reassembled again in August to sing for the Mennonite World Conference.

The Motet Singers used their rehearsal hours to study works from various periods. Dr. Mary Oyer led them in singing modern and Baroque music with composers Britten, Debussy, J. S. and J. C. Bach. Included in the Curistmas program were Charpentier's "Song of the Birth of Our Lord," Britten's "A Boy Was Born," and J. C. Bach's "The Childhood of Christ." Two cantatas by J. S. Bach-"God's Time Is the Best Time" and "Out of the Depths Have I Cried Unto Thee"-composed the Spring Lenten program. They also studied J. S. Bach's motet, "Jesu, Priceless Treasure," for performance at the August Mennonite World Conference in Kitchener, Ontario, Canada. A chamber orchestra accompanied the chorus most of the time. Local appearances of the group included several Thanksgiving services, a Chapel program, trips to Ohio churches, and Commencement.

The majority of this group of singers are music majors. The chorus is organized every second year to give these outstanding music students and others an experience in studying and performing difficult choral works.

Choruses Merge for Requiem

Collegiate Chorus is the music group composed almost entirely of freshmen. It serves as a training ground in further chorus experience for qualified students. Under the direction of Marvin Miller, the group made several campus and local appearances, including Freshman Parents Weekend Vesper Service and a program for the Homecoming audience on Thanksgiving evening. Several short trips wre taken to churches in Ohio and Indiana. The main works studied by the chorus were Schubert's "Mass in G" and Brahms' "Requiem." This latter work was performed at the Sunday afternoon program during graduation weekend. A Cappella and Motet Singers joined Collegiate Chorus to sing the Mass; the College Orchestra accompanied the massed choruses.

A Cappella Chorus provided opportunity for upperclassmen to study religious choral works. The focal point of the year's musical study was the tour during Easter vacation. Local appearances included contributions to worship services, the Homecoming program with "Worthy Is the Lamb" composed by former Goshen College music instructor J. Harold Moyer, and their Easter program to the college audience after tour. Dwight Weldy directed the chorus in performances, rehearsals, and activities.

Efforts Are United in Production

Layouts are finalized by Foolscap staff Tom Kauffman, Larry Landes, Wilma Kauffman, Mary Brunk, Editor Rachel Yoder, and Gordon Lapp.

The College Orchestra, under the direction of Lon Sherer, appears several times each year to accompany soloists and choruses, and to give entire concerts. It provides experience in musical group work for its qualified student instrumentalists.

At their first program, the orchestra performed works of Mozart and Schubert for the Homecoming audience. This was followed by the traditional Christmas concert featuring "Hungarian Dance No. 1" by Brahms, "London Symphony No. 7" by Haydn and "Brandenburg Concerto" by Bach. At the Spring concert, the group served to accompany winners of the local Concerto Aria contest—Dan Lind, Macy Friedt, Kay Swartzendruber, and Sherwyn Bachman. The final performance of the year was in the accompaniment of Brahm's "Requiem;" given by the massed choruses at graduation time.

Foolscap was published this year for the first time to display the creative endeavor of students and faculty in painting, photography, sculpture, music, prose, and poetry. This magazine was similar to the Matrix of 1960 and the Inkunabulae of 1959, but it included a broader range of subjects. Committees of students and faculty chose the entries to be printed. The magazine was sold in individual subscriptions to the college community. Prof. S. A. Yoder advised the production.

Increased broadcasting time, an addition of 800 records to the library, and more student-produced programs expanded the outreach of the college radio station—WGCS. Many freshmen helped in the extension of the station's programming.

To the regular broadcasts of Chapel and Church services were added programs of evening meditations, Sunday morning Search, and religious music. Student-produced music programs featured folk music and music of the great masters. Several discussions were put on the air this year–faculty forums, student round-tables, and invitation to poetry.

With program material from the network of National Association of Educational Broadcasters, WGCS was able to extend evening broadcasting one half hour. Saturday night programs were continued until midnight, and Sunday morning air time began at 8:00.

Several faculty members assisted student directors in planning programs and operating the station. Prof. Lon Sherer chose music for the nightly Evening Concert. Head Engineer of the station was Prof. Jake Swartzendruber. Dr. Roy Umble served as faculty advisor.

Music is selected by Bill Davidson-Chief Student Engineer and Mary Miller-Program Director.

Norman Kraus, Willie Meyers, Kermit Yoder.

Curator Nelson Springer exhibits historical Mennonite costumes from Archives at Society meeting.

The Peace Society again this year encouraged students and community to search for methods and meaning of world peace. As a result of ideas fostered by the Society and other groups, students decided to go to Washington, D.C., in February and speak to Congressmen about foreign aid and disarmament. To communicate ideas to the college constituency, Society members planned Sunday afternoon radio programs for the Elkhart station WCMR, dramatized the play "Which Way the Wind," arranged Peace Sunday School classes and lectures for Peace Emphasis week, and toured Illinois, lowa, and Nebraska churches during Easter vacation. The local group participated in planning and attending conferences of the Intercollegiate Peace Fellowship, an organization among various historic peace church colleges.

Mennonite Historical Society is organized to support the Mennonite Historical Library and to publish findings of historical research in the Mennonite Quarterly Review. Another publication edited by the Society is a series of historical monographs—Studies in Anabaptist and Mennonite History. This year the traditional three public addresses included Dr. J. C. Wenger's and Dr. Melvin Gingerich's lectures on "Faith, Tradition, and Costume." "Anabaptism and Spiritualism" was the third lecture given by Dr. Robert Friedmann. Mr. Friedmann's Hutterite Studies was the year's book publication.

Pre-Seminary Fellowship was planned to give its members a preliminary view of problems and challenges of seminary study and to keep before the students a sense of mission. Most of its members anticipated joining the seminary student body after graduation from college. Members of the fellowship participated in Gospel teams sent from the seminary, in inspirational monthly meetings, and in attendance at some seminary functions.

The Seminary Fellowship was the voice of the seminary student body, responsible for activities of students. They concentrated this year on a study of the relation of the seminary to the college. Seminary representatives served on several college councils.

Included in the activities planned by the organization were Friday morning services of worship and discussion, Monday prayer cell meetings, coffee hour, and socials with Elkhart seminary students. The fellowship this year decided to join the Inter-Seminary Fellowship, an organization of related evangelical seminaries.

Varsity Debate Squad. Lynn Nafziger Allen Hershberger, Martin Stoltzfus, John C. Yoder, Alan Kreider, Frances Hassencahl, Ed Hager, Prof. Jess Yoder, Albert Zehr.

Novice Debate Squad. Allen Stuckey, Rowen Hochstedler, Stan Kaufman, Delmar Good, Gabriel Ebersole.

Contestants in speech events and on debate squads this year verbalized their ideas on a number of topics. These thought-provoking presentations gave participants experience in speaking and gave audiences new areas to probe.

Debators competed against teams from area colleges and universities on the subject "Resolved: That labor organizations should be under the jurisdiction of anti-trust legislation." They gave several demonstration debates to local high school and PTA groups.

Competition in forensics events moved to an individual basis as participants in the six speech contests discussed meaninglessness, Cuba, and nuclear warfare. Speakers also competed beyond the campus. Goshen College was represented at the Indiana Oratorical Contest by Rachel Yoder, who placed first with her speech "Instant Death," and Bill Davidson, who spoke on "A Tale of Two Cities."

Joy Hershberger, Vesperian president, presents award to Women's Speech Contest winner Carol Yoder for her speech entitled, "A Constant."

Women's Peace Oratorical Contest winner Beverly Smith speaks on, "What Good Must I Do?"

Winners of the Freshmen Speech Contests talk together. Men's first place winner Norman Leichty, "Sixty Years;" Margaret Beechy, women's second place; Elmer Yoder, men's second place; women's first place winner Bonnie Leichty, "In God We Trust."

Contests Reflect Ingenuity

"Troubled Jerusalem" was the title of Joe Haines' winning speech in the Men's Division of the Peace Oratorical Contest.

"Darkness at Dawn" brought Kermit Yoder first place in the Men's Speech Contest.

Creative Writing Club. Prof. Mary Bender, Mark Brubaker, Christine Horswell, Frances Hassencahl, Stan Kaufman, Guenn Stoltzfus, Allen Hershberger, Tom Warfel.

Creative Writing Club meetings served as a sounding board for member's original poems and plays. The group of eleven student writers met informally in Seminary Lounge and club member's homes to criticize writings. They gave authors among them suggestions for improvement of their literary works. They also discussed techniques of professional poet's styles and meaning in poetry. Club members were required to submit one manuscript each semester to retain membership in the club.

Language Arts Club met monthly again this year and invited anyone interested in reading and interpreting drama to the meetings. Plays by professional writers and poetry were discussed. Also, the group read a drama written by one of their members—Ed Hager.

The highlight of the year was the study and production of "In Unbroken Line"—a reading written for the World Day of Prayer. The reading was given at the First English Lutheran Church.

Poetry, Drama Are Interpreted

Language Arts Club. Clockwise: Frances Hassencahl, Betty Falb, Mark Brubaker, Tom Warfel, Carol Yoder, Janice Miller, Allen Hershberger, Prof. Roy Umble, Macy Friedt, Mary Kay Kaufman, Albert Zehr.

The Spanish Club emphasized the use of their language in club meetings this year. Round-table discussions on Puerto Rican education, films, and poetry utilized students' knowledge of the language. Other club activities included a program at a Spanish Mission in Ohio and Prof. Verna Smith's discussion of her trip to Mexico last summer. The aim of the club was to give Spanish students a broader understanding of literature, music, and ways of life of Spanish people.

The German Club promoted interest and appreciation of German literature and culture through a round of activities. Certain events have come to be the club's tradition—German-style supper and Christmas cookie decorating. The club also read poetry together and played German folk games at Brunk's Cabin during their weekend there. Dr. John Oyer addressed club members on the Berlin issue at one of their regular meetings.

Professions Are Explored

Christopher Dock Club. Donna Yoder, Marlene Chupp, Jacqueline Juday, Rose Batch, Margaret Steider, Mary Nafziger, Prof. Ezra Hershberger, Vera Zook, Prof. Perry Miller, Clarice Roth, Bonnie King

Christopher Dock Club—an organization of persons interested in teaching—afforded its members opportunities to help in educational projects to further understanding of the teaching profession and acquaintance with teachers in the field. Members spent one evening collecting and mounting magazine pictures to be used in teaching English to Africans. Several large maps were sent to Puerto Rico and Japan. A panel of supervising teachers and their students discussed student teachers at one of the monthly meetings. Films, exhibits of childrens' art from around the world, dinner meetings, and a tea for supervising teachers were among other of the year's activities.

Student Nurses Association planned programs valuable to nursing and pre-nursing students. A physical therapist from Elkhart-Robert Smith, a nurse who had worked in Nepal-Lena Graber, and a doctor from Haiti—John Bender opened new areas in service to club members. District SNA held meetings here and at South Bend during the year. The nurses learned more about drugs through their trip to Miles Laboratories. The purposes of the club were to broaden students' scopes of nursing fields and to give opportunity for associations with fellow nursing students outside academic hours.

Social Customs Are Observed

International Relations Club, foreign students from 14 countries shared cultures and experiences in living and working in America. They, with their roommates, met twice a month to study Korean art, to honor visiting countrymen, or to give public programs on campus and in area churches.

Social Work Club gave sociology majors an opportunity to continue their study of human relations in non-academic hours. The club sponsored speakers to introduce related subjects and vocational possibilities in this field to the members. Their activities also included a club project and the production of a play "The Broken Circle."

Social Work Club. Back: Howard Birky, Donald Voth, Marcia Schmucker, Marnetta Rychener, Roseyn Rychener, Leah Beachy, Guest Dr. Brudo. Front: Esther Leatherman. Irene Bishop. Dean Atlee Beechy.

Empiricism Is Applied

Members of Science Club found challenge in the various fields of science outside of class and laboratories. The club, composed of students with widely differing interests, found unity and understanding in the range of subjects discussed. College professors, both local and visiting, presented lectures on botany, zoology, mathematics, physics, and chemistry.

The group took several trips this year—one to Conn Instruments in Elkhart, the other to Norte Dame University for Science Open House.

Home Economics Club members supplemented their classroom theories with practical applications in club activities. Fashions, Christmas decorations, cookware, taffy pulling were demonstrated in club meetings. A special program emphasizing the home was planned; the year's activities concluded with a buffet supper.

This club gave students majoring in home economics new professional, economic, and social insights in their field. Other interested girls also found ideas for homemaking through the club activities.

Home Ec. Club. Arlene Yoder, Annie Faulk, Betty Studer, Connie Lockerbie, Mary Schrag, Marilyn Zuercher, Janice Borntrager, Leanne Swartz, Prof. Edna Shantz, Kathryn Hoober, Jewel Yordy, Marilyn Hostetler, Julia Gerber, Ruth Geiser.

New Champion-Tri Traveler 7FC has radio and full instrument nanel.

Members of Aero Club finance their organization through shares purchased by members. With these shares, the club this year traded in their Piper J3 for a new Champion-Tri Traveler 7FC. Pilots and pilots-intraining attended classes in South Bend to study weather, ground and air conditions. A tour of Myers Aircraft Plant in Michigan, a breakfast flight to a large airport, and night flights over the Goshen area gave individuals training in plane construction and operation.

Audubon Club, in their study of birds, hiked, discussed, watched films, and listened to lectures to learn more about habit and identification of various species. The group visited a heron colony in the spring. They followed tradition in a weekend at Brunk's Cabin, where they had a Sunday morning service in the woods.

Student Activities Board serves as a study committee for student organizations. They seek to solve problems and scheduling conflicts of clubs. Student government was the primary focus of the group this year as they studied constitutions of other campus governments, determined the purposes and drew up possible patterns for such a body at Goshen College and discussed these ideas with campus leaders. The group also studied gaps and overlaps in existing campus organizations and set up a recreation committee to help Edith Herr plan activities.

Student-Faculty Council brings together faculty and students to recommend solutions to problems and complaints from campus persons. The council serves as a link between the student body and the college administration. Recommendations this year were made concerning traffic regulations, campus lighting, and student help in planning daily Chapel services. The council also installed a world affairs bulletin board in the dining hall.

Women's House Government Association discussed improvements for women's dorms and planned activities in which dormitory women could become involved. After-dinner coffee hour on Sunday and Men's Open House program were among these activities. As a Christmas project, the girls collected yarn to send abroad. The officers also planned a spring convention with women's organizations from other related schools.

Men's League served residents of men's dormitories in a similar way. This year they revised campus traffic regulations and sponsored a trip to Shaw's play "Arms and the Man" in South Bend.

Both organizations provided news papers and magazines for the dorms and served as disciplinary boards.

by Enrichment

Lecture-Music numbers, literary society drama productions, art exhibits, and special programs give the student guidance in appreciation. He finds many opportunities to enrich his life, to cultivate his tastes, to gain insights as he studies masterpieces of art, drama, and music. Such events are planned to contribute to students' growth, but they also provide for him a method of escape from the daily routine of classes, meetings, and study. The less formal events—parties and open house programs—fill the students' needs for relaxation, fun, and laughter. In a four-year college career, these special events function as outstanding highlights—a first date, flowers for Spring Fest, and, finally for seniors, caps and gowns.

Lecture-Music numbers brought to the campus again this year outstanding persons and groups to present cultural programs to the college and to the community.

Two illustrated lectures were included in the year's programs. Helen and Frank Schreider narrated their film "The Ganges, Pulsebeat of the Nile"; Ed Lark's film was "Provincial France." A third lecture was given by CBS News Correspondent Daniel Schorr on the balance of power between the East and the West.

The climax of the year was the excellent performance of Bach's St. John's Passion by the Robert Shaw Chorale and Orchestra. Other musical groups were the Orchestra San Pietro of Naples, the Netherlands Chamber Choir, and the New York Woodwind Quintet. Folk-singer Richard Dyer-Bennet entertained a large homecoming audience. Jaime Laredo closed the season with his violin solos.

A-V's Dramatize Shakespeare

"All the world's a stage,

And all the men and women merely players: They have their exits and their entrances..." became true for the Adelphian-Vesperian Literary Society as they casted and staged "As You Like It" March 2 and 3. Set in Shakespeare's immortal language and with his subtle sense of humor, conflict and love set the mood for the play. A banned duke, a disguised lady, envious brothers, loyal servants, contribute to the plot of the comedy, which culminates in a wedding festival for three couples.

This unusual play for Goshen College included both speaking and singing parts. It was directed by Dr. Roy Umble, Janice Miller, and Fran Hassencahl. Stage Manager was Charles Mellinger.

"For my Lord I am ready to die, That His Church may have peace and liberty."

With this eternal certainty, Archbishop Thomas 'a Becket gives himself to his murderers in the Church at Canterbury. He leaves the priests and peasants of the twelfth century village to realize and reply that "the Church is stronger for this action—supreme, so long as men will die for it. Therefore, O God, we thank Thee Who hast given such blessing to Canterbury."

T. S. Eliot's verse dramatization, "Murder in the Cathedral," was presented by the Avon-Aurora Literary Societies and the Speech Department on November 10 and 11. Dr. Roy Umble and Joan Johns directed the action; Jim Hallman managed the stage.

Peggy Cooke expresses fear that the peasants will have to "stand to the doom on the Archbishop."

Bill Davidson and Prof Willard Smith question John Brademas on Russian education.

Throughout the year, men come to campus with lectures, concerts, and exhibits to contribute to students' learning. Through these outstanding scholars and teachers, students are led to focus their attention on one particular aspect in their field of learning—art, sociology, speech, music.

Among guest lecturers brought to the campus were a psychologist—Dr. Elmer H. Ost, a doctor studying alcohol problems—Dr. A. C. Ivy, a speech teacher—Dr. Kenneth Hance, a poet—W. D. Snodgrass, a mathematician—Dr. John Wagner, and a Russian education expert—John Brademas. The fine arts were represented in the form of exhibits and music groups. Students examined paintings of Carlos Morgan, etchings and prints of Ray French. The University Singers from Indiana University performed sixteenth century madrigals for the college audience.

The college also hosted several conferences for church and community people this year. A series of lectures and workshops on the problems of aging brought to the campus nationally-known experts Dr. Leonard Z. Breen, Dr. James E. Doty. A second major conference, with Drs. Lall G. Montgomery and Floyd O. Rittenhouse, dealt with alcohol and tobacco education.

The list of socials for Goshen College students ranges from the formality of the Spring Fest to the informality of the Halloween party and from the quiet participation in mid-winter socials to the noise of literary society support.

The desire to win the largest number of freshmen to the respective literary societies demanded creative thinking on the part of society members. This was reflected in campaign slogans and programs: drama by the Avon-Auroras and a Miss America contest by the Adelphian-Vesperians.

With varying seasons came parties, taking their themes from holiday tradition. A "Halloween on the Moon" idea was carried out in the year's first party with a hayride and costume contest. Group singing of carols, orchestra numbers, and a modern drama of the nativity set a formal atmosphere for the Christmas party.

The highlight of the year was the Spring Fest on May 5. This formal banquet night, sponsored jointly by the literary societies, was planned around the theme of Oriental gardens. A dramatization of Thornton Wilder's "The Long Christmas Dinner" followed the banquet.

Events Bring Parents, Alumni

Complexities of graduate studies are shared by alumni at Homecoming time.

Alumni and parents of students come to campus several times during the year to familiarize themselves with college life and with changes that have taken place. Occasions such as Homecoming, Freshman Parents Weekend, and Graduation exercises are times of reunion for families and friends.

The first weekend in November, parents of freshmen students were invited to the college. Freshmen guided their parents on a tour of the campus, and, at the traditional banquet on Saturday night, these students introduced their parents to classmates.

For the Alumni, November 23 meant returning to the alma mater for Thanksgiving services, special dinners and programs, ballgames, and a Lecture-Music number. The Homecomers chatted with old classmates and visited classes during their week-end stay.

Class day processions and traditions, a senior nurses' program, Seminary Graduation services, caps and gowns, and senior breakfast marked the seniors' last week of school. Parents came to see their sons and daughters receive diplomas; and alumni, to share the occasion with former fellow dorm-dwellers.

Special religious meetings brought to the campus outstanding scholars and church leaders again this year. Religious Life Committee and the Young People's Christian Association worked jointly to plan a year's experience of Christian challenge for students.

Among the speakers for the year were Paul Erb, editor of Gospel Herald, who discussed commitment during the annual evangelistic services and Eric Rust from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary who challenged students during the Christian Life Conference. Donald G. Miller, Union Theological Seminary, lectured on the Gospel of John in March. Church vocations were emphasized by A. J. Metzler from the Mennonite Publishing House. Included in other special emphases weeks were chapel and evening services concerning peace, service, and missions. Speakers for these weeks were Ronald Goetz, Harold V. Smuck, Ray Horst and Robert Kreider.

Gospel of John is interpreted by Dr. Donald G. Miller in light of recent study.

Special Emphases Foster Faith

Twice each year the college dorms open their doors to unveil the secrecy hidden behind them most of the rest of the year. Men who came to see the inside story of girls dorms last fall were greeted with medieval, city, and heavenly themes. These ideas were carried out in decorations and in refreshments served on each floor. The girls were honored guests at the program of special speakers, jazz band, and Yoder Hall Chorus in Union Auditorium and refreshments served in Union Lounge following open house.

Girls saw the other side of the story when they moved through the halls of Yoder, North Hall, Shoup, Eighth Street, and Kenwood. Inspection of the men's dorms was followed by a program featuring musical and dramatical excerpts from "West Side Story," a story of reconciliation between teen-age gangs in New York.

by Friendship

To the incoming freshmen, living at Goshen College symbolizes an opportunity to form intimate and life-long friendships.

The departing senior, as he reminisces on college experiences, finds that he has realized these dreams of four years ago.

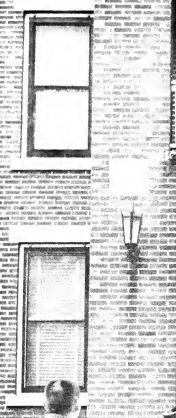

He has become an integral part of a lasting circle of friends.

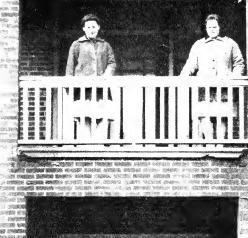

He has had times of sharing deep concerns, of receiving advice, of joy in others' accomplishments, of relaxation with his friends.

He has also found enjoyment in working with acquaintances, in learning to know fellow students across a conference table.

However, he has discovered that in learning to know others, he has begun to find wholeness in himself, to synthesize social, intellectual, aspirational and spiritual segments of life.

He has learned to know himself as a friend.

Persons who are seeking to know more about Christ, the background of the church, and the Bible, who have a desire to serve the church as pastors, missionaries, or Christian educators enroll in the Goshen College Biblical Seminary. Here their three years of work are characterized by the study of original languages, church history, Book surveys, and finally systematic theology. Ideas, concentrated study, and common courses unified the 38 students this year. Related closely to their study and in pastoral preparation, practical work assignments were given to each student. In this assignment, the student served as assistant pastor in one of the local churches.

In addition to study, seminarians took part in activities planned by Seminary Fellowship. Individuals served as representatives on college councils, as members of the Student Council, and in Seminary Chorus. Socials, coffee hours, and ping pong furnished relaxation from the intensive hours of study.

The seniors have found that by working together, they as a class have become one. They have unified their 186 class members through common goals, common experiences, and common ideals. They have learned to share with each other.

Some of the events which have helped to bring them together were the class trip to Detroit where they toured a Ford plant and attended a Big-Ten football game on the way home, taking senior pictures, choosing a gift to present to their Alma Mater, planting the traditional ivy, and rehearsing for Baccalaureate. They are united, too, in common memories of Freshmen Orientation classes, sophomore tests, victories of the class basketball teams, and class socials.

The class also stands as a composition of individuals. Each person holds a unique background of experiences. Each has his own plans and aspirations for the future. Each has his particular field of academic training, and his individual level of attainment in this field. Yet the class is united for one last time as they take their places in line for the Commencement procession.

Juniors spend their academic hours in courses that will apply to their major field of study. They find their third year at Goshen College a year of hard work, numerous extra-curricular activities, and deepening friendships.

The 211 juniors participated as a class in a number of activities. They spent the week-end between semesters hiking, discussing, and sledding at Brunk's Cabin. They planned and gave the Junior-Senior Banquet in honor of the Senior Class. Accompanying the seniors on Class Day activities and making tentative plans for next year's Senior trip occupied the last weeks of school.

The year ends with happy memories and sighs of relief that the Maple Leaf has been published, courses have been passed, and leadership responsibilities have been completed.

To begin a weekend of relaxation, juniors hike from snow-bound cars to Brunk's Cabin.

To the sophomore, being a member of his academic class means taking sophomore tests, completing general education courses, and choosing a major field of study. Everything is not work, however, and sophomores took time to prove this.

Included in the free-time activities of the 207 sophomores were class socials. The group went to the College Cabin for their outing in the fall, and to Brunk's in the spring. Following the precedent set by last year's sophomores, the class joined in the work of producing a Variety Show. They also made arrangements for a Sophomore-Freshman Breakfast in April.

Deciding in which activities to participate next year climaxes the year for individual sophomores. Positions as editors for the school publications, commissioners for the YPCA, and club officers are filled for the coming year by leaders in the sophomore class.

A freshman comes to Goshen College and is soon accepted as one in a group of persons seeking truth. Freshman Days, orientation classes, talks with upperclass counsellors, and living in dorms foster his growth as a part of a group preparing for life.

The Freshman class has become a unit through acceptance of a constitution and election of class officers and sponsor Dr. Frank Bishop this year. To the 284 class members, this unity is meaningful in memories of the Freshman Banquet in October, the weekend for parents to visit, and class outings and socials. The freshmen went to Camp Mack in September, skated and tobogganed in February, and planned a spring class outing.

Freshmen also have found unity in their first registration conflicts, in intensive study for their first exams, in their rush to get first term papers in before deadlines. These experiences have prepared them for the remaining three years of college life.

Freshman Class Officers. Janet Yoder, Secretary; Winifred Hostetler, Treasurer; Arthur Smoker, President; JoAnne Schrock, Historian; Max Miller, Vice President.

by Patronage

Students of Goshen College sometimes take for granted the contributions made by local merchants and businessmen to college life. These business establishments prove to be shopping places for students. Also, their contributions have again this year made possible the junior class's meeting the expenses of producing the 1962 MAPLE LEAF. The closing section of the book signifies appreciation to merchants for their part in serving the college community. Students also show their personal thanks as they move from window-shopping into the local stores and shops, and here contribute a part of the approximately $100,000 spent each year by the student body as a whole in area business establishments.

The publication of the 1962 Maple Leaf was made possible through the cooperation and contributions of many of its readers. It is possible to thank only a few of the people who helped to produce this record of a year. With the distribution of the finished product, the gratitude of the staff goes to:

Duncan Schiedt, Paul Kaufman-Kaufman Studios, and James Purvis-Maple Leaf Studios-professional photography.

William Zuercher-faculty adviser.

Jack Bundy of S. K. Smith Co.-covers.

Students, faculty members, and interested persons for their suggestions, advice, and cooperation.
